

FUCK BUTTONS STREET HORRRSING

(ATP)

The best experimental ambient techno heavy drone noise rock album you are likely to hear this year.

Trying to convey the wonderful world of noise on paper is pretty much impossible but safe to say that at points while listening to this record you could be forgiven for thinking you have been drugged and locked in Monkey World. Then just when you think you will never get out the noise subsides and it sounds like Orbital have reformed and are playing over in the corner. What 'Street Horrrsing' doesn't do very often is make you wonder where a sound has come from, nothing feels particularly alien here. What it does do is bury snatches of melody just under the inner surface of your skull and leaves them there to germinate. If you want truly engrossing multi-faceted experimentalism this is the way forward.

James Batty